crats should consider with care, think well and act with discretion.

We need only to stand together and be true to our party, its principles and its organization to be invincible in Missouri. Every consideration of interest and honor requires us to stand together and to let no small personal differences disturb the harmony of our action. There is too much at stake for any other course. Let the republicans win Missouri, and all hope of a national victory for our party would disappear. The light of a well-founded hope of success in 1904, now rising on our horizon, would go out in a moment. Our people would lose heart in every state in the linion, and Missouri, God pity her, would not recover from it in a generation. The republicans know this, that Missouri is democracy's stronghold and the key to the situation, and, therefore, they will strive as never before to conquer us. But they can not do it if we are true to ourselves and stand loyally together.

If we do that we will drive them again peli-mell from the field, and old Missouri will then lead the way to a great victory in 1904. I have but one wish, and that is to co-operate with you, gentlemen of the committee, and with all good democrats, in unity, harmonizing and organizing the democracy of the state so as to make success a certainty. It is our business to work for the party, not for men. We have nothing to do with the ambitions or contests of individuals, but it is our dury to look only to the general good. I believe that is the spirit in which we should meet and in which we should proceed. Let us show to each other courtesy and respect, treat everybody fairly, but go forward in our work with one great purpose—that of promoting the welfare of the democratic party.

promoting the welfare of the party.

Hoping and believing that this spirit will animate all our deliberations, and that the meeting will redound to the good of the party. I now call the committee to order for the transaction of business.

The Democratic state central committee met at St. Louis, on the 18th, and decided to hold the judicial convention in Springfield on Tuesday, St. St. July 8, and the general convention in St.

St. Joseph, Tuesday, July 22.
St. Joseph was the only candidate for the latter gathering, the other cities competing for the judicial convention. Springfield received 17 votes out of 30 on the seventh ballot. Left ferson City. ferson City being the closest com- S petitor, with 9 votes.

W. L. Gupton, of the Ninth congressional district, introduced a resolution asking that 30 days be given Champ Clark in which to present a petition, signed by 100,000 democrats, calling for a general primary, and that the state chairman should thereupon issue the call in accordince with the petition. William Aull, of the Seventh district, offered a substitute, declaring that the state committee could not assume such an authority. The substitute was adopted by a vote of 20 to 10.

E. A. Glenn presented a resolution demanding that Chairman J. M. Seibert should convene the finance com mittee within two days, and there make a detailed report of receipts collected by him personally and expenditures in the campaigns of 1898 and 1900. Upon motion of T. J. Ward, of St. Louis, the resolution was tabled by a vote of 19 to 11.

Immediately after adjournment Chairman Seibert issued a call for the two conventions in accordance with the action of the committee. and $20,000 worth of unset and set The basis of representation will be
